

NAKED BOY SLIPS AWAY FROM HOME TO SEE A SPORTING EVENT AND IS NOW IN JUVENILE COURT

A place on a farm for the summer is wanted by the juvenile court for an eleven-year-old boy who weighs but 75 pounds and is so ambitious that he cannot be kept in school.

The boy has not done anything of a vicious nature, because he is not that kind of boy. He is keen for rooming to the river banks and watching the scenes at the stockyards. There is not a spot of vital attraction to a boy in Ogden City that this boy does not cherish in his dreams, both night and day.

Among the lovers of sport in Ogden this boy is numbered. He has seen a few boxing and wrestling matches, but has never paid a cent for the privilege.

HESS BAKERY ROBBED AND SMALL SUM IS OBTAINED

Robbers entered the Hess bakery on Grant avenue last night and, after searching the drawers of the various desks and cash registers, made off with $7.25 in cash, one Colt's revolver and one suit of overalls.

An alarm was sent to the police and the robbery was investigated but no arrests were made.

The Hess bakery is now owned and managed by the Ogden Baking company.

The thieves gained entrance into the building through a rear door. Tearing the screen from the transom, they managed to crawl into the building.

BERT LYTELL AT UTAH TODAY

"Blackie's Redemption," a Metro photoplay with Bert Lytell as the star, will come to the Utah theater today. This is one of the Boston Blackie stories by Jack Boyle which have been appearing in the Red Book Magazine, and it affords the star a splendid chance to get in some of the best work he has ever done. The Blackie subjects are proving rich material for photoplay since they are incorporated with genuine dramatic values. The elements of deep human feeling, pathos, and the redemption of a lost soul are the main features of the story.

This Girl Sings Away Shellshock of Doughboy Patients Overseas

Administering doses of familiar American songs to shellshock patients in hospitals is the new job of Miss Paula Lind Ayers, formerly a concert singer in New York City, now a Y.M.C.A. entertainer in France.

Miss Ayers' career as a song physician began by accident. While touring a number of American camps to sing to the doughboys, she visited a base hospital one afternoon and sang to the patients in the various wards.

"No need to go in there," she was told, in front of one closed door. "The shellshock patients are in there. They are making so much noise that they probably wouldn't hear you."

"I should like to try, anyhow," she said. Before the end of Miss Ayers' first stanza, all but three or four of the worst cases had been quieted, and were listening to the song. By the time she had sung half a dozen songs, a few of the men were joining in the chorus. It was the first time that some of them had spoken since they had been stricken with shock.

After that, she visited the hospital daily upon the request of the commanding officer, and went to the other hospitals in the region. Without exception it was found that the patients responded more readily to her singing than to almost any other treatment. Certain songs, Miss Ayers has discovered, appear to have a more beneficial effect than others.

"I have to begin with the softer, quieter melodies," she says. "Anything spirited or ragtime seems to frighten the men at first, just as any loud, sudden noise does. I start in with things like 'Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight,' 'Little Buttercup,' 'Little Gray Home in the West,' and lullabies of any kind. As the boys' condition improves we go on to other songs, and soon most of the patients are singing with me."

"I believe that in the colleges this sort of thing is called 'musico therapy,' though I discovered it by accident. Some of the boys have had very little treatment except music, and are recovering fast."

Novel as this use of entertainment is, it is pronounced highly essential by army officers, and one of them, besides commending Miss Ayers for her work, has ordered this "song treatment" for all the shellshock cases in his command. This is one reason why the "Y" has called for 375 more entertainers to go overseas. The hospitals need them almost as much as the theaters do.

The M. I. A. of the Fourth ward will hold a conjoint session in the ward chapel at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. The following will be the program:

Prayer.
Flute solo by Axel Nylander.
Reading, Miss D. Emeling.

Two youths were before Judge Dan Sullivan of the juvenile court this morning on charges of speeding automobiles on the streets of Ogden City. The boys drive delivery trucks for commercial houses, and they explained to the court that they were both making for the bridge over Ogden river, on Washington avenue, when the desire to speed seized them.

As the court decided that it was a matter of competition for driving honors, they were allowed to go, after being warned that another offense would result in their driving privileges being taken from them.

The court stated that it was only because the two boys earn their living by driving cars that they were not entirely restrained from driving cars in Ogden for some time.

No Police Captain To Serve After the Change on May 15

The elimination of the office of captain of detectives, the return to the old style system of three sergeants, one in charge of the three shifts, is the proposed lineup of the police department after May 15, when the resignation of Captain O. H. Mohlman takes effect.

The reason for the change and the abolishing of the office of captain of detectives is said to be due to the fact that the detective force of the police department is so small that the work can be directed by the sergeant in charge of the shift.

There is much speculation as to who are to be promoted. Among the possible sergeants the names of I. C. Canfield, Charles Pincock and A. B. Jensen have been mentioned.
